The Monterey Peninsula

Quite simply, it is one of the scenic wonders of the world. The Monterey Peninsula has been celebrated by poets, authors, artists and photographers. The Monterey Peninsula begins at Point Lobos State Reserve, continues to Carmel-by-the-Sea, the quaint village of exclusive boutiques and doll house architecture, then on to the famed 17-Mile Drive. Along a three-mile stretch of spectacular coastline speckled with tidepools and craggy beaches, are the ornate Victorian homes of Pacific Grove. In the hollow of the Bay is Monterey, rich with California history. The Monterey Peninsula is a destination to anticipate, a visit to savor, an experience never forgotten.

The Naval Postgraduate School

Built in 1880 by railroad tycoon, Charles Crocker, The Naval Postgraduate School started as The Del Monte Hotel. "The Big Four" formed the Pacific Improvement Company to build resorts and otherwise attract commerce to the West. The Del Monte was the centerpiece of the Monterey effort and boasted pools, gardens, luxurious amenities and modern conveniences. By the end of the 1880's, 17,000 guests visited a year, nearly eight times the population of Monterey. When the Depression and the Second World War proved too much of a hardship, the grounds were offered to the Army and Navy. In early 1943, the Navy leased the grounds with an option to buy to set up a preflight training center. After the war, the Navy purchased 627 acres. In 1951, the Naval Academy no longer had room for the Postgraduate School and moved it to Monterey. It now serves all branches of the military, federal employees and students from allied countries.

Monterey Bay Aquarium

Discover the undersea world of Monterey Bay, showcased in stunning detail at one of the largest aquariums in the nation. The Monterey Bay Aquarium celebrates the diversity of life in the Monterey Bay, exploring all the facts, myths and mysteries of this spectacular marine region throughout a host of innovative galleries and exhibits. The aquarium has been reserved for a reception on the evening Monday, November 18th. Enjoy hors d'oeuvres and a no-host bar beneath life-sized whale models in the Marine Mammals Gallery or while viewing otters, sharks, wolf-eels and starfish. Standing three-stories above, the dramatic, living California Kelp Forest is the tallest aquarium exhibit in the United States. With its vibrant creatures, fish swimming at eye level and the immense kelp forest towering above, it is as if you are standing on the ocean floor.

Cost for attendees and guests is $80.00 per person; however, the first 325 conference registrants will be admitted courtesy of the Mine Warfare Association, A&T, Inc., Lockheed Martin Corp., Mercury Computers, Inc. and Raytheon Co.
