RADM John J. Schieffelin Award for Excellence In Teaching at the NPS

Dated 6 June 1993 (Last Updated: 14 July 2000)

Reason for Update: Add 2000 winner. The profile section of the page pertaining to Admiral John Jay Schieffelin was relocated to an internal web page server in compliance with current Department of the Navy (DoN) Policy.

Purpose of Recognition:

While there are many excellent teachers at the Naval Postgraduate School, only one professor is selected each summer to win the distinction of having been voted the recipient of the Admiral John Jay Schieffelin Award for Excellence in Teaching as the school's most outstanding faculty instructor.

The annual winner joins a long list of other faculty members selected each summer as the "best-of-the-best" at the Navy's University. The recipient is determined by ballot information supplied by current and recent alumni students. The ballot information and a performance history are processed through a series of objective computer programs which eliminate bias and award merit rankings to eligible candidates. A Schieffelin Award committee, comprised of appointed faculty members, evaluates the results of the balloting and selects a winner.

In addition to the honor, this award serves to augment existing incentives for superior teaching. The Schieffelin Award provides a substantial stipend for the recipient. This has been made possible through a gift from the endowment of the NPS Foundation. The award is presented annually by the Superintendent at the Spring Quarter Graduation Commencement Ceremonies in June.
