Welcome

The need to keep the peace in the wake of conflict and an emphasis of sharing the burden of collective defense and security building continues to grow. Established in 2001, the School of International Graduate Studies (SIGS) is the newest school within the Naval Postgraduate School and is on the forefront of contributing to the advancement of building partnership capacity. SIGS offers a variety of educational opportunities to U.S. and international military officers and government officials wanting to advance the knowledge and skills necessary to meet today's complex and challenging security environments.
