NPS faculty recognized for scholarship, teaching and research achievements

Promotion and Tenure Ceremony May 21, 2002

Fifteen members of the NPS faculty will be recognized for outstanding scholarship and teaching in a promotion ceremony tomorrow at the Naval Postgraduate School. The program begins at 3 p.m. in Herrmann Hall.

The professors were selected for their skill as educators and their ability to develop research programs of international stature that are also Navy- and Defense-relevant, said Dr. Richard Elster, NPS provost and chief academic officer: "Our two overarching goals are to be indispensable to the national security of the U.S. and be recognized by our peers in civilian universities as having programs of the highest academic quality."

Promoted to Full Professor:

Tom Herbers, Oceanography, Graduate School of Engineering and Applied Science;
Clyde Scandrett, Mathematics, Graduate School of Engineering and Applied Science.

Promoted to Associate Professor with Award of Tenure:
