RESUME OF JAMES MORGAN FREMGEN

James M. Fremgen was born in Chicago, Illinois, on 5 December 1933. He received the degree of Bachelor of Science in Commerce, with a major in accounting, from the University of Notre Dame in 1954. The following year he was awarded the Master of Business Administration degree by Indiana University. After three years on active duty with the US Coast Guard, he returned to Indiana University, where he was awarded the degree of Doctor of Business Administration in 1961. His doctoral research dealt with the problem of involuntary liquidation of Lifo inventories.

From 1961 until 1965, he taught in the Department of Accountancy at the University of Notre Dame. In 1964, he was licensed as a certified public accountant in the state of Indiana.

He joined the faculty of the Naval Postgraduate School in July 1965. Until July 1967, he served as chairman of the Department of Business Administration and Economics. His teaching has been primarily in the areas of financial accounting, management accounting, cost accounting, and internal control and auditing. His research has been in the areas of financial accounting, management accounting, and government contract costing.

Professor Fremgen has served as a visiting professor at the University of Hawaii, Northeastern University, and Northwestern University.

He is a member of the American Accounting Association, the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, the Institute of Management Accountants, Beta Alpha Psi, and Beta Gamma Sigma. He has served the American Accounting Association as Director of Education, as President of the Management Accounting Section, as President of the Western Region, and on various committees.

He has provided research and consulting services to the Naval Air Systems Command, Naval Sea Systems Command, and Naval Facilities Engineering Command.
