Maureen Vachris Awarded Grant to Hopkins Research

Maureen Vachris has been awarded a National Science Foundation grant for summer study in marine biology at Hopkins Marine Research Station, Stanford University, Pacific Grove, California.

Maureen is the wife of LTjg Alfred F. Vachris, Jr., an instructor in the Aeronautics Department. She received her BA from Manhattanville in Purchase, N. Y., and her MA in biochemistry from Hofstra in Hempstead, N. Y.

Currently Maureen is teaching science at the Pacific Grove Junior High School.

Her work this summer will go towards her Ph.D. She is studying certain types of red algae found in the Pacific and why they grow only at certain depths.

OWC PROG

One of the most popular programs, the semi-annual fashion show, gives OWC members a pre-season look at the newest of spring styles.
