Naval Postgraduate School Board of Advisors

Admiral Stanley R. Arthur, USN (Retired)
Consultant

Stanley R. Arthur was born in San Diego, California. He attended Miami University in Oxford, Ohio on a Navy Reserve Officer Training Corps scholarship. Upon graduation in 1957, he entered flight training and was designated a Naval Aviator in 1958. During his 38 years of active duty service he had the opportunity to command at several levels. As Commanding Officer of Attack Squadron One Sixty Four on board USS HANCOCK (CVA 19) he completed over 500 combat missions during the Vietnam conflict. He Commanded the Combat Stores ship SAN JOSE (AFS-7), the aircraft carrier USS CORAL SEA (CV-43) and Commander Carrier Group Seven. Arthur's staff tours included assignments with Commander in Chief of the Pacific Fleet in Hawaii, the Rapid Deployment Joint Task Force, Commander in Chief Central Command (twice) and the Bureau of Naval Personnel. He served as the Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Logistics prior to being selected to command the U.S. Seventh Fleet based in Yokosuka, Japan. During this period he was responsible for the conduct of combat operations of the largest armada of warships assembled since World War II from his flagship, USS BLUE RIDGE. Arthur's final assignment was Vice Chief of Naval Operations.

Upon retirement from the Navy in 1995, Arthur entered the private sector and served as Vice President for Naval Systems with Loral Corporation and then as Vice President for Washington Operations with Lockheed Martin Corporation's Electronics Sector. In 1999 he became President of Lockheed Martin Missiles and Fire Control in Orlando, Florida. This operation designs, produces, and supports some of the most advanced combat systems in use by our armed forces. In addition to the facility in Orlando, he was responsible for the operations in Ocala, Florida; Troy, Alabama, and Archbald, Pennsylvania. In June 2005, he retired from Lockheed Martin.

In addition to his BA degree from Miami University, Arthur has earned a BS degree in Aeronautical Engineering from the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School, and a Master's degree in Administration from George Washington University. He also has been recognized with honorary doctorate degrees from Miami University and The Citadel. In 1996 he received the Admiral Arleigh A. Burke Leadership Award from the Navy League.
